New regulations increases needs for protection of low energy lamps

New EU directive has dramatically increased the demands for low energy lamps. Recent studies have also shown that the retail price for low energy lamps and fluorescent strip lighting are about to increase with 20-25%. The new market demand for this type of products has resulted in higher level of theft and shrinkage and also an increased need for solutions for protection, such as safers. The MW Security wide FORTKNOX™ product range has proven to be a problem solving solution for protection of these lamps.
